"Moral Courage" was printed in large letters and put as the caption of the following items, and placed in a conspicuous place on the door of a systematic merchant in New York for constant reference:

Have the courage to discharge a debt while you have the money in your pocket.

It is not generally known that the Rev. Charles Wesley, brother of the founder of the Methodist church was blessed with two sons. RISE AND FALL OF AN OIL CITY.-It is not only individuals who have suddenly increased in prosperity and as suddenly gone down into nothingness; there are cities (says the Boston Journal) of which the same can be said. Such a one is Pithole City, Pa. Within one month from the completion of the first house, this city had a telegraph office and hotel, costing the owners $10,000. In one month more there was a daily paper established, and in the next a theatre; in another month another theatre, and then an academy of music. In stelen.—Hon. N. F. Graces in the N. Y.

It then had about fifteen thousand people, elaborate water-works, a City Hall, and an experiment. pensive city government Then occurred the completion of labor saving enterprise which the petroleum was sent off independent of the laboring population. At once 4,000 persons were thrown out of employment, while 2,000 houses became useless. This was the death blow to Pithole. At once the hotels, the theatres and the total sent and so arranged that when wanted any one could be obtained without having to overhaul the whole stack. -the so-called Miller Farm Pipe Line-by which the petroleum was sent off indepenonce the hotels, the theatres and the telegraph office were closed, and the daily paper gave up its ghost, whilst almost every one packed up his trunk and moved out. Only nine families remain out of a population of 15,000 souls, while the railroad from Pithole and Oleopolis runs only one train a day, consisting of a locomotive and a single car, which usually is empty; but the company is obliged to keep running, otherwise the charter for the road would be lost. They still hope against hope for better times for that unfortunate city, which in only seven months was born, fullgrown, got sick, and died. Undoubtedly this is a case unparalleled in history, med-ern or ancient. Neither Egypt nor Greece can give examples of such rapid changes

ABOUT IDLENESS.—Many young people think an idle life must be a pleasant one; think an idle life must be a pleasant one; fine white sugar, mix them together until but there are none who enjoy it so little, the sugar is dissolved, then put in jars, and are such burdens to themselve, as seal them, and expose them to a hot sun those who have nothing to do.
